

wire South America and TUBOTECH 2019 again concurrent in Sao Paulo

This is already the fourth time the two regional No. 1 trade fairs for wire, cable and tubes – wire South America and TUBOTECH – will be held concurrently at the Sao Paulo Expo Exhibition & Convention Center in Brazil.

From 1 to 3 October 2019 the exhibition halls will again become the local hotspot for these industries. In addition to companies from South America exhibitors from Europe, the USA and some Asian countries are expected. Approximately 500 exhibitors from a total of 24 countries will display machinery, plants, products and services on some 30,000 square metres of exhibition space.

After a change of government in late 2018 Brazil's economy is slowly but surely picking up again. Over the past few years sustainable investments in the sectors oil, gas and infrastructure were required since many machines and plants in the country had become outdated. The next two years will see increased investment in these segments continue.

This means Brazil is an attractive market with growth potential for the suppliers of machinery and plants for agriculture, the construction and energy sectors and the automotive industry.

After China, the USA and Argentina, Germany is the fourth most important supply country for Brazil. This is also why new machines and equipment account for one quarter of the imports from Germany.
